WILLIS VAILS
By Buster Willis

Well, the new bank is open. We know who the first depositor was, but we haven't been able to find out who made the first loan. There was music and flowers and people at the opening. And some money. George Parnall, your postmaster, took the money you had in his post-office and put it in the bank. Or at least that must have been the money he deposited because nobody ever accused George of having that much money of his own. Anyway, it's as safe there as it is in the postoffice.

I had to have a tooth pulled last week after letting it swell up and get good and sore. The aching and throbbing that I had to endure until it was removed reminded me of a true story concerning a friend of mine out in West Florida. He had "too good" tooth trouble and finally decided to have all his teeth pulled. When the dentist called the first one and started to throw it away he said: "Wait, Doc, save those darn things for me." The dentist asked what in heck he wanted with the old rotten snags and he replied: "I'm going to take those teeth home with me and put them on a table and put my eyes on them. Then I'm going to sit there and thumb my nose at 'em and watch them devils thro."

The party given by the new bank at the Cleveland Inn last night was a "dilly." Plenty of good short talks. Maybe that's the reason they were good. The Mayor came up with a longer story and so did Jay Moran, manager of the sugar crop. There were a lot of Belle Glade people present who were called on to introduce themselves and tell where they were from. County Commissioner Doyle Crocker, who lives in Pahokee, was called upon to give the words. He arose and unhesitatingly stated: "I'm Doyle Crocker from the University. His position was something like a Republican at a Democratic convention."

It ain't so, not a word of it. Mrs. Wedgworth does not have any interest in any enterprise in negro town regardless of what was printed in one of the most notorious name ads appearing in The Herald. Some how the slogan got mixed up with the legal advertisement about the Dew Drop Inn had a slug showing Mrs. Wedgworth as owner of the establishment. The mistake was either made after the proof was run or the proof was run by a proof-reader. Anyway, Mrs. Wedgworth isn't in the restaurant and she doesn't meet in negro town or any other place. We apologise, Mrs. Wedgworth, for the mistake!

Aint fate a funny thing! The old Dew Drop would pick someone like our friend Howard Hany, with no protection whatsoever on his head, to do a head-first dive through a windshield. If there hadn't been a steering wheel there would probably have been two protection heads through the same windshield.

THINGS THEY'VE LEARNED
Helpful Information Given In Question And Answer Form

How Should Celery Be Sprayed?

It is necessary to spray celery every week for the control of early blight. Usually 12 to 14 applications of Bordeaux mixture are needed. The first application should be made as soon as the plants appear from transplanting and the last made only a few days before the crop is harvested.

It is necessary that spraying be thorough if the maximum degree of blight control is to be obtained. The spraying should be done with power equipment having three nozzles per row and spraying in every second or third row. The spray should be so large and the spray is not broken up sufficiently. One hundred gallons of spray per acre per application is a good rule to follow.

Bordeaux mixture is the best spray material for the control of early blight. We have found the 4-2-50 or 4-4-50 formula the best. The 4-2-50 formula has less lime than the 4-4-50 and is somewhat better during the warm weather. If the winter is cold and rainy, the 4-4-50 formula should be used. Two pounds of wettable sulphur added to 50 gallons of Bordeaux mixture has given better blight control than straight Bordeaux mixture in some experiments.

Manganese and zinc sulphates may be added to Bordeaux mixture, where these nutrients are needed. Two pounds of manganese and two pounds of zinc per 50 gallons of Bordeaux mixture should be sufficient in most cases. Boron may be added to the addition of one or two pounds of powdered boron to 50 gallons of spray.

"DAD" SCULLEN IS GLAD ABOUT BANK

James F. "Dad" Scullen, Chamber of Commerce and one of the town's best-loved and most civic-minded citizens, expressed enthusiasm Wednesday about the opening of the bank here. "Dad" has worked tirelessly for the bank and the reality is an ambition fulfilled for him.

He has been confined to the Pahokee hospital at Pahokee for the past several weeks, but is much improved and expects to pay a personal visit to the new financial institution in the near future.

Demonstration Club Urges Christmas Spirit

Mrs. Lewis Murray was in charge of the program. Christmas gifts suggestions at the regular meeting of the Home Demonstration Club, held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. H. Hart. She urged that everyone have the old-fashioned Christmas with each member of the family, especially the children, taking part in the preparations.

"The value of making our gifts," she said, "is two-fold. It not only consumes material, but also helps us to cultivate talent. Much more love and understanding is put into a gift you make than one that is bought, though you may spend more money on it. She gave dozens of suggestions for gifts that girls can make and a gift that is useful to the household. She also displayed hand-made articles suitable for gifts to the old and young.

Mrs. Ralph Kidder presided over the business session, assisted by Mrs. Edith V. Barron. County demonstration agent Mrs. H. A. Stollenberg, program chairman, announced that the next meeting will be on Dec. 18 at the home of Mrs. James Scullen. It will be a Christmas bazaar.

State Defense Council To Aid Farm Priorities

H. L. Hane is Committee Member To Contact

The State Defense Council, through its Division of Agriculture, at Lakeland, on Tuesday took steps to lessen the evils of quotas on Red Bluff potato and sugar cane.

H. L. Hane's Committee on Vegetable Industry Problems was authorized to draw a normal supporting Pat Cannon's amendment to the pending potato quota bill, which will eliminate Red Bluff from quota provisions. Because of the theory that Red Bluff is perishable, it is thought that Mr. Cannon's amendment will have an excellent opportunity for adoption.

This memorial or resolution, when transmitted through channels will be brought to the attention of the entire Florida delegation at the action of the State Defense Council and appeal will be made for it as a defense measure.

Signs of it well at the hands of the Committee also. The following is the resolution adopted:

"In an effort to meet real and complex problems of sugar supply for the consumer of the United States and prevent the plowing out of sugar cane now planted and meet problems of shipping, storage and increased production of sugar cane in Continental United States.

"BE IT RESOLVED, that the Agricultural Advisory Committee of the Defense Council recommends that for each farm in the continental United States that the proportion of acreage shall be not less than acreage planted in sugar cane during or prior to the fall of 1941, and that the acreage limitation of continental production of this essential defense food be suspended during the emergency.

Mr. Hane, on behalf of vegetable shippers, joined the citrus interests in urging some action on the part of the Transportation Committee on the subject.

BASKETBALL TEAM BEGINS PRACTICE

A town basketball team organized last Monday night is practicing at the South Bay Parent-Teacher Association in 1942 for a health center unit and community center which has been used for the past several years. The team is composed of the following: Henry Selph, M. D. Daniels, O. D. Herring, Leroy Albright, Norman Spooner, Emmett Roberts and George Scarborough.

Practice sessions are held each Tuesday and Friday nights at the basketball court in the white building on the corner of the intersection of the town of South Bay. The building was taken over by the community funds and donated labor. The building was the remains of the old two-room school which served the school after the 1928 hurricane until the new modern building could be built and put into use. The Parent-Teacher Association and the Women's Home Demonstration Club had the work of remodeling and equipping the building in charge and have been in continuous possession of the building since its gift to them.

FIRE PREVENTED

S. M. McAllister, chief of police, of South Bay, by his prompt action Friday night, prevented a fire from spreading from a building on a lot owned by a man from a disastrous fire. Notified by a passing motorist, McAllister went to the building which was filled with smoke, he immediately investigated. The store was closed and Officer McAllister found the rear door and gained entrance to the building. He found the fire in the motor of the ice-cream freezer compartment on fire. He extinguished the fire before any material damage could be done. Had the fire not been discovered until it had gained considerable headway, it might have damaged not only the store but also the building. The fire was caused by a short circuit in the wiring of the ice-cream freezer. The fire was discovered by a passing motorist who called the police.

HOWARD HANEY IS ACCIDENT VICTIM

Howard L. Hane, prominent local grower and cattleman, was injured Friday night in a motor accident near South Bay. He was driving a car when it struck a tree and overturned. He was not seriously injured but was taken to the hospital for observation.

RECORD CROPS ARE BEING HARVESTED

Growers report this is one of the best seasons on record. The earliest crop beans did not yield satisfactorily, probably due to the heat and dry gale wind which whipped off the blossoms and damaged young beans; but the later fields have yielded excellent crops of good quality beans. Many of these beans have produced fine yields without any fertilizer this fall. The only commercial plant food has been a factor in the excellent yields.

Cabbage is becoming an increasingly important crop as growers are bringing new varieties into cultivation, which is too far from the lake to be free from frost hazard. It is estimated that three tons of cabbage have been planted this fall by growers operating from Lake Wales to Moore Haven.

Other leaf vegetables being raised are lettuce, celery, and Chinese cabbage.

A Reality At Last - - -

We WELCOME the new FLORIDA NATIONAL BANK AT BELLE GLADE. It is the culmination of much effort on the part of many civic-minded citizens. It is the realization of an ambition long fostered in the community. It is now, in fact, a REALITY!

With the opening of the Florida National Bank at Belle Glade on Tuesday morning we feel that our town has added the remaining link in a chain of enterprises necessary to the assured growth and development of any municipality.

During the past few years we have been fortunate enough to have established in Belle Glade a high school, a new town hall, a newspaper and numerous other enterprises which denote permanency and assurance for the future. The addition of the bank was the final remaining asset needed to round out a complete community!

Again, to the officers, directors and personnel of the Florida National Bank at Belle Glade, we say: "WELCOME, and every good wish to an integral part of a growing community!"

"TRACING"

"Under the bright and starry sky,
 Happily I'll live; and happily
 I'll die."

No, that isn't mine. I read it somewhere. I don't remember where, nor by whom. Nor am I sure I have even quoted it correctly.

Yet, here it comes, from out of the somewhere, to haunt my thoughts this day. And hark me in trying to place it.

How often I recall a quotation that apply fits a certain situation. Only to remember just part of it. (Which means I cannot use it.) Nor can I remember its author, book, or publisher.

And how fine it would be if students could just get the habit in high school of keeping an ingeniously catalogued and indexed book of quotations, to which they could refer in later life. So they may thus easily find, and get the definite information on any quotation they might desire from volumes of reading done in student life.

"TRACING"

I thought it a rather "casual" comeback someone inserted in last week's gossip column, and sent my comments (under the caption of the "Second Guesser") on the Melbourne game. Didn't you?

I suppose I ought to drop it there. But somehow I am going to write a whole column on "Needle-ing."

Wonder what my fair critic would have thought had she read the comments in the Sunday "Miami Herald," which ran something along this order: "Ferguson Wipe For Florida?" I say "abe," because a boy would have been reading the sports columns regularly, long ago. So would have known that to comment especially upon one outstanding player in a game is common practice. And not just something for him to take exception to.

By the way, what happened to the University of Miami last Saturday night, anyway? It's a good thing I was kinda "broke" over the week-end, because, if I'd been betting on that game I'd have been on the losers!

So I've decided to take the advice of my kind critic, and quit trying to write as a "Second Guesser."

After last Saturday's game, I'm fully convinced I wouldn't even make a good "Third Guesser," let alone a "Second."

And, besides, the team doesn't need something to pull it out of the doldrums, now. Like it did after the Melbourne game.

Thus the reason for the new caption: "Tracing."

I sorta like that for a heading. And perhaps it won't prove to be so "controversial"? Eh, what?

But, my! What an experience it was to be in Miami last Saturday afternoon!

College bands, football crowds, streamlined cars bedecked out in school colors. With streamlined girls perched upon the backs of the seats, blowing horns and singing. And the thrill of excited expectancy, everywhere!

Christmas was in the air, all over the downtown area. Toy-lands were open and in full swing. That always lends an extra verve and excitement to things.

And, if you get down to Miami before Christmas, don't forget to be sure and see the elaborate toy display in the window of Richards Department Store. All the animals in Disney's new cartoon, "Dumbo," are outfitted there in full array. Including Mickey Mouse in full circus regalia. And "Dumbo," the little baby elephant, peeps out at you, waving his trunk and ears.

And, if the kiddies are along, take them up to the third (or is it the second?) floor of Richards. I think the floor walker allows "tiny tots" free rides on the airplane and motorboat merry-go-rounds up there. At 8:15, for older students and least the "tots" were having the time of their young lives, riding around and around, the day I was there. And a line waiting a block long.

And now, for next week, may I bid you a Happy Thanksgiving!!

—The "Tracer."

EIGHTH GRADE HAS ASSEMBLY

By Mary Louise Van Natta
 Last Friday, by omitting the second period, the students and faculty of Belle Glade High School had assembly in the auditorium. The eighth grade had charge of the program with George Wedgeworth acting as announcer. Sonny Smith read the Bible and led the assembly in the Lord's Prayer. Mr. Anderson asked us all, in saluting the flag, to salute alike—extending the right hand, palm up, toward the flag in the Pledge of Allegiance. Betty Hampton, Mary Joyce Bonchard, Barnes Creech, Joel Bass, Bobbie Smith, and George Wedgeworth sang "Hi, Neighbor!" Mrs. Camp played the piano accompaniment. Mary Frances Rawls gave an entertaining reading entitled: "Something to Say," after which Sonny Smith recited the "Gettysburg Address." Halson Mahle gave some clever imitations—a crow, dog-fight, hen, and donkey; and Sonny Smith sang "The Ban-boo Song." Barnes Creech the World on Fire," and with Bobbie Smith, gave an amusing stunt. Mr. Bartlett then announced that there were three different kinds of tickets on sale in the office: tickets for the football dance, for the game with St. Ann Catholic school, and for the P.T.A. library play. He said that practically the only things that kept Belle Glade from having an accredited high school were that we did not have enough teachers, and that our library did not have a sufficient number of books. We must have five books per student in order to become accredited. He said that the county would double all the money made from the play. Mrs. Camp, director of the play, has been drilling thoroughly all the members of the cast of "Through the Keyhole." It was announced that the play would be held Thursday afternoon for the smaller children; the main performance, Friday night at 8:15, for older students and adults. Admission—Twenty-five and fifty cents, respectively. Willie Frank Martin told of the organization of the band, and predicted that by next year Belle Glade "would have a grand band."

The assembly then sang "God Bless America." Barnes Creech, Bobbie Smith and Joel Bass gave another stunt, after which the students returned to their fourth period classes.

STATE DEFENSE COUNCIL
The committee to secure uniform weight limitations on Federal AAR roads throughout the country and particularly in the states of Tennessee and Kentucky.

The only two questions on which the meeting took definite action were those of red blooded potatoes and sugar. This was because legislation is now pending on both subjects and was considered urgent that the support of the Defense Council be publicized for its effect on our legislators.

Mr. Haney's committee also brought up for discussion the question of labor and was joined by each sub-committee in agreeing that there is now, and will continue to be a serious shortage of farm labor. The Agriculture Division will ask the Labor and Fisheries Committee of the State Defense Council to give this serious study.

Jim Beardsley, Chairman of the Sugar Committee was accompanied to Lakeland by committee members Ralph R. Johnson, T. D. Nevel of Gainesville, and Dr. N. L. Johnson of Lakeland. Dr. Nevel is a well known expert on subjects in extension and educational work.

Mr. Johnson, A.A.A. administrator, George Burr, Executive Secretary of the State Defense Council and Frank Holland, personal representative of the Governor, were among the 75 outstanding persons attending.

George Burr recalled that the Defense Council secured for farmers in this community 48-hour action on priority for mineral elements. He also definitely stated that farmers must not expect any consideration that by each sub-committee in agreeing that there is now, and will continue to be a serious shortage of farm labor.

During periods of cold, wet weather, the growth of the celery crop can be stimulated by adding nitrogen to the Bordeaux spray. This may be supplied either as nitrate of potash, or nitrate of soda. Four pounds of either material may be added to 50 gallons of Bordeaux mixture. The addition of wettable sulphur to all spray mixtures containing nitrate is advisable since better blight control will thus be obtained.
